of the Week

The old adage that “variety is the spice of life” has never been more true than when applied to your choice of golf courses. Sure, it’s great to get to know every wrinkle and slope on that familiar country club layout that you’ve played every weekend for years. But when you’ve got more time in your schedule for the game you love, it only makes sense to expand your horizon of options.

Each of the destination communities featured below have between four and nine on-site courses to enjoy at your leisure. Tee times for you and your guests are never a problem. All have active golf associations for men and women, plus a year-round calendar of golf events that range from family-fun outings to seriously competitive tournaments. And when your game needs a little tune-up, the pros at these clubs offer private lessons to sharpen your play from tee to green.

And don’t forget the abundant social benefits of these multi-course locations. With a variety of clubhouse dining options, interest groups, and recreational amenities, you and your partner will make new friends and engage in new experiences that will add to your quality of life.
